> Elif is wild about sea turtles – she has turtle posters all over her room!

“Every little step counts.”

every small good action is important and helps to make a big change

> I only picked up three bottles, but every little step counts!

“make a difference”

to do something that has a good effect on a person or a situation

> When we work together, we can really make a difference.

“Count me in!”

said when you want to join an activity or a plan

> A beach clean-up on Saturday? Count me in!

Irregular verbs in the Simple Past

Regular verbs just add -ed: camp → camped, fish → fished, cycle → cycled, ski → skied, plan → planned.

Base form	Past form	Example
go	went	We went hiking last Sunday.
swim	swam	Maya swam in the lake.
ride	rode	Mustafa rode a pony at the farm.
run	ran	We ran to the tent in the rain.
see	saw	We saw two eagles on the hill.

The Tent That Went on an Adventure

Linked to: Student's Book pp. 116–117 – Ece and Ege's weekends in nature; Doğa and Toprak find plastic rubbish at a school camp

BEFORE YOU READ Did you ever sleep in a tent? Where was it, and what happened?

> Elif's Notebook · Post #31
> Category: Nature & adventures · Our class camp in Muğla

Hi, readers! I'm back from our school nature camp in Muğla, and what an adventure it was! Mrs Demir took our class to a forest near Köyceğiz Lake for three days. Pamuk stayed at home in Antalya with Mum, Dad, Emre and Mustafa.

On the first day, we went hiking up a really high hill! At the top, we saw two eagles, and I drew them in my notebook. In the afternoon, we put up our tents. Maya and I finished ours in ten minutes. Kerem took an hour, and he didn't use all the pegs. 'Pegs are boring,' he said.

On Saturday, we rode bikes along the lake and tried to fish. We didn't catch anything, but Maya found a frog in her shoe! Luckily, Mum packed extra socks for me, so Maya got a dry pair. That evening, Mrs Demir told us the camp rules: 'You mustn't make a fire in the forest, and you have to take all your rubbish home.'

That night, a strong wind came, so we all slept in the big group tent. In the morning, Kerem's tent wasn't there! We ran everywhere and finally found it next to the lake. But we found something else, too: a pile of plastic bottles, bags and old cans. Other campers left it there. Suddenly, I realised something. The wildlife here lives with people's rubbish every day. That isn't fair!

So we picked up all of it – five big bags! Kerem said, 'You see? My tent didn't fly away. It went on a clean-up mission!' We laughed a lot, didn't we, Maya? Later that day, we did a big clean-up on İztuzu Beach – but that's another post! Next time, I'm going to take more bags, and Kerem is going to take more pegs.

Love, Elif (and Pamuk, who didn't miss me at all)

Bye Bye, Plastic Bags!

Linked to: Student's Book p. 120 – Harun's text about pollution and solutions; p. 123 – the students' environment campaigns

BEFORE YOU READ How many plastic bags does your family use in a week? Make a guess!

> Turunç School Magazine · Young Earth Heroes
> by Elif Yıldız, 6-B

Last month, at our class camp in Muğla, I saw plastic bags on İztuzu Beach, and I remembered a true story. Can children change the world? Melati and Isabel Wijsen say yes! These two sisters grew up on Bali, a beautiful island in Indonesia. Bali is famous for its beaches, but the girls saw a big problem there: plastic bags were everywhere – on the beaches, in the rivers and on the streets.

One day at school, they had a lesson about important people in history, like Nelson Mandela and Mahatma Gandhi. After the lesson, the sisters asked themselves, 'What can we do now, as kids?' They realised that they didn't have to wait until they were adults. So in 2013, when Melati was 12 and Isabel was 10, they started a campaign called 'Bye Bye Plastic Bags'.

Their message was simple: we must reduce plastic waste and protect our island. The sisters and their friends collected signatures from local people and tourists. They organised big beach clean-ups, and thousands of volunteers came to help. They also gave talks at schools and even gave a TED talk.

It wasn't easy, and it took years. But the girls didn't give up. In the end, Bali's leaders made a rule against single-use plastic bags – the bags people use only once. Soon, young people in many other countries started their own Bye Bye Plastic Bags teams.

So what did I learn from Melati and Isabel? First, every little step counts. Second, you don't have to be an adult to solve a big problem. You just have to start! Take a reusable bag to the market and say 'No, thank you' to plastic bags. Who knows? Your idea could be the next big campaign!

READING 3 INFORMATION LEAFLET (CLIL – SCIENCE) ≈ 298 words · 3 min

Welcome to Turtle Beach!

Linked to: Student's Book p. 122 – CLIL 'Different types of pollution' (light pollution); p. 118 – rules with must / mustn't

BEFORE YOU READ Do you know any animals that lay their eggs on beaches? Which ones?

> Turunç Lower Secondary School · 6-B Nature Club leaflet
> Made by Elif Yıldız for our camp in Muğla: a visit to İztuzu Beach, Dalyan

Hi, I'm Elif! On the last day of our camp in Muğla, our class is going to visit İztuzu Beach in Dalyan. Its nickname is 'Turtle Beach', because every summer loggerhead sea turtles (Caretta caretta) come here and lay their eggs in the sand.

Meet the loggerhead! These turtles have very big heads, and that's where their name comes from. At night, a mother turtle comes out of the sea and digs a nest in the sand with her back legs. She lays about a hundred eggs there. Then she goes back to the sea and never sees her babies. About two months later, the baby turtles come out of the sand, usually at night, and hurry to the sea.

Amazing fact: the heat of the sand decides if the babies are boys or girls! When the sand temperature is higher, more girls come out. When the sand is cooler, more boys do.

Danger – light! Light pollution is a big danger for baby turtles. At night, the sky over the sea is a little brighter than the land, so the babies follow the light to find the water. But on many beaches, lights from buildings, cars and even phones confuse them, and they go the wrong way. Plastic is another problem. A plastic bag in the water looks like a jellyfish, and turtles sometimes eat it by mistake.

Our Turtle Beach Rules:

1. You mustn't touch or walk on the nests.

2. You mustn't use torches or phone lights on the beach at night.

3. You have to fill in any holes you dig, because baby turtles can fall into them.

4. You have to take all your rubbish home.

Remember: you don't have to be a scientist to protect sea turtles and their environment. You just have to follow these rules!

BEFORE YOU READ Did you ever take part in a clean-up day? What did you find?

> Group chat: 6-B Clean-Up Crew · Elif, Maya, Kerem, Bora

Monday, 19:45 – at home in Antalya

Elif Hi, team! Great news: Mrs Demir loved my campaign idea! On the last day of our Muğla camp, we're having a beach clean-up at İztuzu. After lunch, we're planting trees at the camp.

Kerem Brilliant! What do we have to bring?

Elif Gloves, a hat and a reusable water bottle. We mustn't bring plastic bottles.

Bora Do we have to bring rubbish bags, too?

Elif No, we don't have to. The camp gives us bags: blue ones for recycling and black ones for other rubbish.

Mustafa Hi, it's Mustafa on Elif's phone! Can I come too? I'm great at finding things. I found a dinosaur bone in the park!

Mrs Yıldız Elif's mum here! Sorry, Mustafa took the phone again. And that 'bone' was a stick!

Kerem What about my robot, Bin-Bot? It picks up bottle caps!

Maya OK, but it mustn't go near the turtle nests!

Sunday, 18:30 – on the bus back to Antalya

Bora What a day! We picked up 26 bags of rubbish, didn't we?

Maya Yes! And it was mostly plastic: bottles, straws, crisp packets …

Kerem Bin-Bot found 312 bottle caps. And it didn't fall into the sea. Well … only once.

Elif Ha ha! After lunch, I showed everyone how to plant the trees. My dad has green fingers, and he taught me last weekend.

Bora We planted twelve young trees. They looked so small, didn't they?

Maya Don't worry. Wait a few years! And Mrs Demir took photos of us for the school website.

Kerem Oh no. I had seaweed on my head in every photo, didn't I?

Elif You did! You look like a friendly sea monster.

Maya Seriously, though, I realised something today. Cleaning is good, but first we have to reduce our rubbish. Then there's less to clean!

Elif True. Every little step counts. Shall we do a clean-up on Konyaaltı Beach next month?

Bora Count me in!
